what we like to like to spend money on. The thirteen full-timers between them are paid about the equivalent of five (that's 5) "normal" salaries for comparable positions elsewhere, but even this is a fairly solid slug when money's as scarce as it is around here. About two percent of our income goes in royalties to the people whose records we play. Maintaining an independent news and current-affairs service obviously involves a lot of communication, long-distance as well as local, and consequently the phone bill is horrifying, as are our power costs.

Then there are the usual and inescapable costs (stationery and other office supplies), chauffeur-driven Commodores - you know the sort of thing) of staying vaguely organised.

And of course, one of the largest and most important areas of expenditure is the maintenance, repair, and/or replacement of technical equipment. Broadcast quality machinery doesn't come cheap, and since it's subjected own recording studio, suitable for use by local bands in live-on-air performances and/or making tapes.

In fact, we're not at all short of ideas as to what we might do to expand our services (though if you've got any others, we're glad to hear them), we're just embarrassingly short of the financial means to implement them. Which brings us back to the original point - Triple Zed needs your support. (Yes, again!) If you enjoy being able to listen to 4ZZZ, and/or the idea of independent, community-oriented media is important to you, then hopefully you'll be moved to once again put your money where your ears are.

of course, was what they saw as breaches of the provisions of the Act relating to the broadcasting of obscene, indecent, and offensive matters.

In a sixty page document setting out the reasons for their decision, the Broadcasting Tribunal rescinded their absolute ban on much of the sensitive material we had broadcast, but some songs remain, notably, Marianne Faithfull's "Why Did Ya Do It".

It was indicated to us that if we were doubtful about the suitability for the broadcasting of material we should check with the Tribunal first.

They say there is no absolute ban on the broadcast of particular language.

In deciding whether matters should be broadcast they list a number of factors which should be taken into account.

These include the nature of the audience, the time it was broadcast (gotta protect the kiddies), the context of the language (whether its use was gratuitous, and deliberately used to offend), and whether it was preceded by warnings.

TRIPLE ZED has had an offer of computerising our subscribers mailing list on the condition that Qld Uni Press can use it.

This means that the updating of our mailing list will actually happen. If for some reason you don't want your address given to Uni Press, please let us know by dropping us a note at PO Box 509, Toowoong.

The Reasons for Decision make interesting reading. The tone is not unsympathetic to Triple Zed. In fact quite a few remarks are very favourable.

And despite the shortening of the licence, wowsers would be premature in assuming they'd had a victory. Within the Reasons there is an interesting section about those with "special susceptibilities over and above those of the average member of the community".

Just as this restricts us from delivering to our core audience material that would not offend them, but possibly offend others it similarly stops wowsers putting themselves in a position where they could expect to only hear material inoffensive to their tender sensibilities.

It's a difficult area, as the Tribunal readily acknowledges. No doubt we have not heard the last of the matter. But at least out of the decision some progress has been made into the unravelling of this issue.
